March 30, 2011, was officially designated “Welcome Home Vietnam Veterans Day” by the U.S. Senate.

On 2 March 2017 forty-two years have passed since an aerial bombardment campaign known by code name Rolling Thunder was launched against strategic targets in North Vietnam. On 8 March 2017, forty-two years have passed since US Marines landed on a beach in South Vietnam, becoming the first US ground fighting forces to be committed to Vietnam War.

On 30 March 2017 forty-two years have passed since the last combat and combat support American troops withdrew from South Vietnam, which ended direct US military involvement in the Vietnam War.

During the 1960’s, the Vietnam War years, our nation eventually become a state in turmoil with dissatisfaction over US involvement in Vietnam. Except for a few former policymakers like Walt Rostow and Henry Kissinger, a majority of the American public, regardless of their politics, believed that sending our troops to war was a mistake. In 1971, for example, 58% of the public told pollsters that they thought the war was “immoral,” a word that most Americans had never applied to their country's war. Further, 69% believed that our involvement in Vietnam was a mistake. And in the Congressional Record of 7 March 2011 it is documented the Senate concurred in the fact that the Vietnam War years were an extremely divisive period among the people of the United States, which caused a generation of veterans to wait too long for the United States public to acknowledge and honor them with words of gratitude. When the troops came home there were no ticker-tape parades honoring them, no triumphant marches or speeches as there had been at the end of World War I and World War II. America's Vietnam veterans returned home to silence, or worse, in some cases to denigration for having served their country.

“The willingness with which our young people are likely to serve in any war, no matter how justified, shall be directly proportional to how they perceive veterans of earlier wars were treated and appreciated by our nation.”

The purpose here is not to elaborate on the merits or faults of the Vietnam War; or to explain why we were there, what we accomplished or how we could have done it better. The purpose here is to acknowledge and honor the Compatriots of the Vietnam War with words of gratitude. For us, the Sons of the American Revolution, such words should come easily and sincerely for they are an acknowledgment of deeds similar to that which our ancestors did: They fought not for territorial gain, or personal wealth. They fought to make a country free.

It is with deep humility and pride that on behalf of the Compatriots of the Sons of the American Revolution I commemorate the passage of Senate Resolution 55 of 7 March 2011 and say thank you to Vietnam War Veterans for their service to country, especially to the 496 Compatriots who are members of the NSSAR Vietnam War Veterans Corps. Welcome home!

J. Michael Tomme, Sr.
